

Today's broad Messianic movement is of the conviction that the Torah or Law of Moses is relevant instruction for God's people in the post-resurrection era. This is a conviction firmly rooted within the teaching of Yeshua the Messiah, who explicitly said that He did not come to abolish or eliminate the Torah (Matthew 5:17-19). Yet throughout much of Christian history, and even more so today, many theologians and examiners have argued that Moses' Teaching has been rendered inoperative, and/or that it was only to be followed by those in the pre-resurrection era. Many of today's Messianic people, while having a witness of the Spirit that God's commandments are to be written on their hearts and minds via the New Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34; Ezekiel 36:25-27), are not equipped well enough to answer common arguments delivered by evangelical Protestant family members, friends, acquaintances, or even various pastors or teachers who they know—when they quote verses to them from the Apostolic Scriptures (New Testament), in support of the premise that the Torah of Moses has been abolished.

The New Testament Validates Torah is a massive resource which all of today's Messianic Believers need, especially in the current season of growth, development, and expansion in which our faith community finds itself. This publication is an extensive compilation of data across the wide range of books and commentaries available from Messianic Apologetics. The core of this resource is an examination of fifty passages, which are commonly used as proof texts to claim that the Torah is not to be followed by God's people today. Statements such as not being "under the Law" (Romans 6:14-15), "Christ is the end of the Law" (Romans 10:4), "All things are lawful" (1 Corinthians 6:12), "how is it that you turn back again to the weak and worthless elemental things" (Galatians 4:9), "abolishing...the Law of commandments contained in ordinances" (Ephesians 2:15), "having nailed it to the cross" (Colossians 2:14), and even "thus He declared all foods clean" (Mark 7:19)—among many—are thoroughly addressed. Considerable attention is given to various Hebrew and Greek issues, potential translation differences, and differences of perspective. Cross-examination and discussion with a wide number of interpreters have also been offered, as well as an exploration of important subjects present within today's Biblical Studies.

The New Testament Validates Torah is an important apologetic study which will benefit Messianic Believers and evangelical Protestants alike. There is literally nothing in today's Messianic movement which has compiled and packed as much information on Torah relevance for God's people into a single book. Also, unlike some other publications issued on the message of Torah relevance, The New Testament Validates Torah is highly respectful to Protestant voices over the centuries who have valued what they have considered to be the "moral law" of the Old Testament, and seeks to fairly honor those who have preceded us in the faith, establishing common ground where possible.

THE NEW TESTAMENT VALIDATES TORAH

THE NEW TESTAMENT DOES NOT
ABOLISH THE LAW OF MOSES

MAXIMUM EDITION

THE NEW TESTAMENT VALIDATES TORAH

THE NEW TESTAMENT DOES NOT
ABOLISH THE LAW OF MOSES

MAXIMUM EDITION

J.K. McKee

MESSIANIC APOLOGETICS

messianicapologetics.net

THE NEW TESTAMENT VALIDATES TORAH

THE NEW TESTAMENT DOES NOT ABOLISH THE LAW OF MOSES

MAXIMUM EDITION

© 2017, 2026 John Kimball McKee

All rights reserved. With the exception of quotations for academic purposes, no part of this publication may be reproduced without prior permission of the publisher.

Cover Image: Jaymantri via Pexels, covered Creative Commons Zero (CC0)

ISBN 979-8316905027 (paperback)

ASIN B0723H5FCT (eBook)

Published by Messianic Apologetics, a division of Outreach Israel Ministries
P.O. Box 516
McKinney, Texas 75070
(407) 933-2002

outreachisrael.net / outreachisrael.blog
messianicapologetics.net / messianicapologetics.blog

Unless otherwise noted, Scripture quotations are from the New American Standard, Updated Edition (NASU), © 1995, The Lockman Foundation.

Unless otherwise noted, quotations from the Apocrypha are from the Revised Standard Version (RSV), © 1952, Division of Education of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America.

Quotations marked WMB are from the World Messianic Bible, published at <ebible.org/engwmb>.

Fair Use Notice: This publication contains copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We make use of this material as a matter of teaching, scholarship, research, and commentary. We believe in good faith that this constitutes a "fair use" of any such copyrighted material as provided for in section 107 of the US Copyright Law, and is in accordance with Title 17 U.S.C. Section 107. For more information go to: <https://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/text/17/107>

Outreach Israel Ministries is a non-profit 501(c)3. All prices listed on the publications of Outreach Israel Ministries and Messianic Apologetics are suggested donations.

Table of Contents

INTRODUCTION .....	xiii
--------------------	------

PART I HAS THE LAW REALLY BEEN ABOLISHED?

1	CHRISTIAN MISUNDERSTANDING OR AN ANTINOMIAN ASSAULT? .....	1
2	ANSWERING: WHAT IS THE LAW? .....	16
3	ANSWERING: THE PURPOSE OF THE LAW .....	30
4	ANSWERING: NO ONE SHOULD KEEP THE LAW .....	44
5	ANSWERING: THE LAW AS A UNIT.....	57
6	ANSWERING: THE VERSES GIVEN AGAINST TORAH VALIDITY .....	65
	Isaiah 1:13-14 .....	71
	Ezekiel 20:12-26 .....	76
	Hosea 2:11 .....	87
	Matthew 5:17 .....	91
	Matthew 11:13 .....	96
	Mark 7:1-23 .....	99
	John 1:17 .....	117
	John 13:34 .....	123
	Acts 10:1-48 .....	126
	Acts 15:19-21 .....	151
	Acts 20:7 .....	176
	Romans 3:19-22 .....	179
	Romans 3:27-31 .....	189
	Romans 4:5 .....	193
	Romans 6:14-15 .....	195
	Romans 6:23 .....	202
	Romans 7:1-25 .....	203
	Romans 8:1-4 .....	220
	Romans 10:4 .....	232
	Romans 11:6 .....	241
	Romans 14 .....	245
	1 Corinthians 6:12-20 .....	272
	1 Corinthians 8 .....	290

1 Corinthians 9:19-23.....	308
1 Corinthians 10:14-33.....	317
1 Corinthians 16:1-2.....	340
2 Corinthians 3.....	344
Galatians 2:11-21.....	371
Galatians 3:12-14.....	397
Galatians 3:23-25.....	409
Galatians 4:8-11.....	421
Galatians 5:1-4.....	432
Ephesians 2:8-10.....	443
Ephesians 2:14-15.....	448
Philippians 3:2-11.....	463
Colossians 2:14.....	477
Colossians 2:16-23.....	485
1 Timothy 1:8-9.....	502
1 Timothy 4:1-5.....	511
2 Timothy 1:9.....	526
2 Timothy 2:15.....	527
Titus 1:14.....	531
Titus 3:5-8.....	533
Titus 3:9.....	537
Hebrews 4:1-10.....	540
Hebrews 7:11-12, 18-19.....	557
Hebrews 8.....	568
Hebrews 10:1.....	582
Hebrews 10:9.....	585
Revelation 1:10.....	588

7 ANSWERING: UNDER GRACE.....595

PART II

THE ROLE OF GOD'S TORAH IN THE LIFE OF A BORN AGAIN BELIEVER

8	WHAT IS THE NEW COVENANT?.....	609
	Jeremiah 31:31-34 .....	609
	Ezekiel 36:25-27 .....	615
	Hebrews 8:7-13 .....	619
	Hebrews 10:14-18 .....	627
9	HAS THE LAW BEEN FULFILLED? .....	648
10	WHAT DOES “UNDER THE LAW” REALLY MEAN? .....	674
	Galatians 3:23.....	681
	Galatians 4:4-5 .....	685
	Galatians 4:21 .....	688
	Galatians 5:18 .....	690
	1 Corinthians 9:20-22.....	693
	Romans 6:14-15 .....	697
	James 2:12.....	704
	Romans 2:12 .....	706
	Romans 3:19 .....	710
	Philippians 3:6 .....	712
	Hebrews 7:11 .....	713
	Hebrews 9:22 .....	716
	Luke 2:27 (NRSV) .....	717
11	WHAT ARE “WORKS OF THE LAW”?.....	719
	Galatians 2:15-16 .....	730
	Galatians 3:2, 5.....	733
	Galatians 3:10.....	734
	Romans 3:19-20.....	736
	Romans 3:27-28.....	737
12	THE FAITHFULNESS OF YESHUA THE MESSIAH .....	741
	Galatians 2:16 .....	744
	Galatians 3:21-22 .....	746
	Romans 3:21-22 .....	747
	Philippians 3:8-9.....	750
	Ephesians 3:11-12.....	753

ABOUT THE AUTHOR.....	757
APPENDIX A: GOD’S TORAH AND TODAY’S MESSIANIC PEOPLE.....	759
APPENDIX B: THE STATUS OF TORAH .....	766
APPENDIX C: WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO HAVE A TORAH FOUNDATION? .	776
BIBLIOGRAPHY .....	783

Abbreviations and Special Terms

The following is a list of abbreviations for reference works and special terms which are used in publications by Outreach Israel Ministries and Messianic Apologetics. Please familiarize yourself with them as the text may reference a Bible version, i.e., RSV for the Revised Standard Version, or a source such as TWOT for the Theological Wordbook of the Old Testament, solely by its abbreviation. Detailed listings of these sources are provided in the Bibliography.

ABD: Anchor Bible Dictionary
AMG: Complete Word Study Dictionary: Old Testament, New Testament
ANE: Ancient Near East(ern)
Apostolic Scriptures/Writings: the New Testament
Ara: Aramaic
ASV: American Standard Version (1901)
ATS: ArtScroll Tanach (1996)
b. Babylonian Talmud (Talmud Bavli)
B.C.E.: Before Common Era or B.C.
BDAG: A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament and Other Early Christian Literature (Bauer, Danker, Arndt, Gingrich)
BDB: Brown-Driver-Briggs Hebrew and English Lexicon
C.E.: Common Era or A.D.
CGEDNT: Concise Greek-English Dictionary of New Testament Words (Barclay M. Newman)
CGL: Cambridge Greek Lexicon (2021)
CHALOT: Concise Hebrew and Aramaic Lexicon of the Old Testament (Holladay)
CJB: Complete Jewish Bible (1998)
CJSB: Complete Jewish Study Bible (2016)
DRA: Douay-Rheims American Edition
DSS: Dead Sea Scrolls
ECB: Eerdmans Commentary on the Bible
EDB: Eerdmans Dictionary of the Bible
EJ: Encyclopaedia Judaica
ESV: English Standard Version (2001)
Ger: German
GNT: Greek New Testament
Grk: Greek
HALOT: Hebrew & Aramaic Lexicon of the Old Testament (Koehler and Baumgartner)
HCSB: Holman Christian Standard Bible (2004)
Heb: Hebrew
HNV: Hebrew Names Version of the World English Bible
IDB: Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible
IDBSup: Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible Supplement
ISBE: International Standard Bible Encyclopedia
IVPBBC: IVP Bible Background Commentary (Old & New Testament)

Jastrow: Dictionary of the Targumim, Talmud Bavli, Talmud Yerushalmi, and Midrashic Literature (Marcus Jastrow)
JBK: New Jerusalem Bible-Koren (2000)
JETS: Journal of the Evangelical Theological Society
KJV: King James Version
Lattimore: The New Testament by Richmond Lattimore (1996)
LITV: Literal Translation of the Holy Bible by Jay P. Green (1986)
LES: Lexham English Septuagint (2019)
LS: An Intermediate Greek-English Lexicon (Liddell-Scott)
LSJM: Greek-English Lexicon (Liddell-Scott-Jones-McKenzie)
LXE: Septuagint with Apocrypha by Sir L.C.L. Brenton (1851)
LXX: Septuagint
m. Mishnah
MARV: Messianic Apologetics Revised Version*
MT: Masoretic Text
NASB: New American Standard Bible (1977)
NASU: New American Standard Update (1995)
NBCR: New Bible Commentary: Revised
NEB: New English Bible (1970)
Nelson: Nelson's Expository Dictionary of Old Testament Words
NETS: New English Translation of the Septuagint (2007)
NIB: New Interpreter's Bible
NIDB: New International Dictionary of the Bible
NIV: New International Version (1984)
NJB: New Jerusalem Bible-Catholic (1985)
NJPS: Tanakh, A New Translation of the Holy Scriptures (1999)
NKJV: New King James Version (1982)
NRSV: New Revised Standard Version (1989)
NLT: New Living Translation (1996)
NT: New Testament
OT: Old Testament
REB: Revised English Bible (1989)
RSV: Revised Standard Version (1952)
t. Tosefta
Tanach (Tanakh): the Old Testament

---

* This is a modified and adapted edition of the public domain World Messianic Bible (WMB).

Thayer: Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament

TDNT: Theological Dictionary of the New Testament

TLV: Messianic Jewish Family Bible—Tree of Life Version (2014)

TNIV: Today's New International Version (2005)

TWOT: Theological Wordbook of the Old Testament

UBSHNT: United Bible Societies' 1991 Hebrew New Testament revised edition

v(s). verse(s)

Vine: Vine's Complete Expository Dictionary of Old and New Testament Words

Vul: Latin Vulgate

YLT: Young's Literal Translation (1862/1898)

WMB: World Messianic Bible (2020)

INTRODUCTION

How do many of today's Messianic Believers approach the issue of the validity of the Torah? Many feel that throughout history, the Jewish people have followed the Law, and that Christians have believed that the Law was abolished after the time of Christ. For many cases this is an accurate assessment, yet for many other cases this is not only too simplistic an approach, but it can also cause us as Messianics to foment some negative and inappropriate attitudes toward faithful Christian men and women who have preceded us in the faith. It is not difficult for us to see how not every Jewish person since the time of Yeshua has been obedient to the Torah, and so it should similarly not be too much of a stretch to acknowledge how there have been many Christians who have looked to follow Moses' Teaching, at least as a guide for ethics and morality.

One of the most useful and important exercises which I conducted during the completion of my M.A. in Biblical Studies at Asbury Theological Seminary (2005-2009), was to read the analysis contained in Stephen Westerholm's book Perspectives Old and New on Paul. While his purpose was to address a contemporary debate in terms of the Jewish background of the Apostle's letters, several of the opening chapters were most useful, as they summarized the approach which three significant figures of Protestant Christianity had in terms of the relevancy of the Mosaic Torah: Martin Luther, John Calvin, and John Wesley.<sup>1</sup> What was basically presented is that two of the three main Reformation traditions had a largely positive view of the Torah (Calvinism, Wesleyanism), as including foundational instruction and commandments which all of God's people were to follow—what is often termed to be the “moral law”—with the other tradition tending to pit God's Law and God's grace against themselves as polar opposites (Lutheranism).

It is very true that a distinction within the Torah between commandments which are classified as being moral, civil, or ceremonial is a bit artificial.<sup>2</sup> It cannot be denied, though, that throughout much of post-Reformation history, the two great theological traditions of both Calvinism and Wesleyanism have largely looked to the Mosaic Law and the Ten Commandments to include ethical principles which all followers of Jesus Christ are to obey and not disregard. These are arguably the two main Protestant strands which have made the most amount of positive difference in Western society, either through the promotion of what is called the “Protestant work ethic” (Calvinism), or simply encouraging faithful Christians to be active in their communities and in accomplishing significant humanitarian works (Wesleyanism). This is important to someone such as myself, whose religious background from both sides of my family is principally Methodist and Presbyterian. At no time in evangelical Protestantism was I ever raised or taught to believe that the Law of Moses as a whole was abolished by Jesus. While I may have thought that some of its aspects were exclusively for Ancient Israel or the Jewish people for a time long before me, never would it have been tolerated for me to think that the Ten Commandments were smashed into pieces at the foot of the cross of Christ.

It can definitely come as a shock to many of today's Messianic people, when they realize that well known figures throughout Christian history have recognized—at least in a broad sense—that the Torah serves as valid instruction for Believers in Yeshua. Notwithstanding some of the finer points of the Law, one can survey some rather significant works which have molded the Christian psyche since the Reformation, and see how various instructions within Moses' Teaching, albeit largely moral, are lauded as being relevant for those who wish to emulate the Lord Jesus. The following are a small snapshot:

---

<sup>1</sup> Stephen Westerholm, Perspectives Old and New on Paul: The “Lutheran” Paul and His Critics (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 2004), pp, 22-87.

<sup>2</sup> The division of the Torah's commandments as witnessed in the six divisions of the Mishnah (Agriculture, Appointed times, Women, Order of Damages, Holy things, Purities) seems to be more accurate. Consult the Messianic Apologetics FAQ, “Torah, division of commandments.”

John Calvin: "The third and principal use, which pertains more closely to the proper purpose of the law, finds its place among believers in whose hearts the Spirit of God already lives and reigns. For even though they have the law written and engraved upon their hearts by the finger of God [Jer. 31:33; Heb. 10:16], that is, have been so moved and quickened through the directing of the Spirit that they long to obey God, they still profit by the law...

"Here is the best instrument for them to learn more thoroughly each day the nature of the Lord's will to which they aspire, and to confirm them in the understanding of it. It is as if some servant, already prepared with all earnestness of heart to commend himself to his master, must search out and observe his master's ways more carefully in order to conform and accommodate himself to them. And not one of us may escape from this necessity. For no man has heretofore attained to such wisdom as to be unable, from the daily instruction of the law, to make fresh progress toward a purer knowledge of the divine will.

"Again, because we need not only teaching but also exhortation, the servant of God will also avail himself of this benefit of the law: by frequent meditation upon it to be aroused to obedience, be strengthened by it, and be drawn back from the slippery path of transgression..." (Institutes of the Christian Religion 2.7.12).<sup>iii</sup>

John Wesley: "I am afraid this great and important truth is little understood, not only by the world, but even by many whom God hath taken out of the world, who are real children of God by faith. Many of these lay it down as an unquestioned truth, that when we come to Christ, we have done with the law; and that, in this sense, 'Christ is the end of the law to every one that believeth.' 'the end of the law'—so he is, 'for the righteousness,' for justification, 'to every one that believeth.' Herein the law is at an end. It justifies none, but only brings them to Christ; who is also, in another respect, the end, or scope of the law,—the point at which it continually aims. But when it has brought us to him, it has yet a farther office, namely, to keep us with him. For it is continually exciting all believers, the more they see of its height, and depth, and length, and breadth, to exhort one another so much the more....

"Therefore, I cannot spare the law one moment, nor more than I can spare Christ: seeing I now want it as much, to keep me to Christ, as I ever wanted it to bring me to him. Otherwise, this 'evil heart of unbelief' would immediately 'depart from the living God.' Indeed each is continually sending me to the other,—the law to Christ, and Christ to the law. On the one hand, the height and depth of the law constrain me to fly to the love of God in Christ; on the other, the love of God in Christ endears the law to me 'above gold or precious stones;' seeing I know every part of it as a gracious promise, which my Lord will fulfill in its season" (Sermon #34, "Properties of the Law").<sup>iv</sup>

Dietrich Bonhoeffer: "This is the fundamental presupposition of the whole Sermon on the Mount. Jesus manifests his perfect union with the will of God as revealed in the Old Testament law and prophets. He has in fact nothing to add to the commandments of God, except this, that he keeps them. He fulfills the law, and he tells us so himself, therefore it must be true. He fulfills the law down to the last iota....Jesus vindicates the divine authority of the law. God is its giver and its Lord, and only in personal communion with God is the law fulfilled. There is no fulfillment of the law apart from communion with God, and no communion with God apart from fulfillment of the law" (The Cost of Discipleship).<sup>v</sup>

---

<sup>iii</sup> John T. McNeill, ed., and Ford Lewis Battles, trans., Calvin: Institutes of the Christian Religion, Vol 1 (Philadelphia: Westminster Press, 1960), pp 360-361.

<sup>iv</sup> N. Burwash, ed., Wesley's Doctrinal Standards Part I: The Sermons, with Introductions, Analysis, and Notes (Salem, OH: Schmuel Publishing, 1988), pp 349, 350.

<sup>v</sup> Dietrich Bonhoeffer: The Cost of Discipleship, revised edition, trans. R.H. Fuller (New York: Collier Books, 1963), pp 137, 138.

Generally speaking, those Christians who have preceded today's generation of Messianic people in faith, who have had a positive view of the Law of Moses, have sub-divided it into the moral law, ceremonial law, and civil law. The ceremonial law and civil law are thought to have only been given to Ancient Israel until the destruction of the Second Temple, whereas the moral law was given to all of humanity to be followed by all people for all time. Theologians, who have approached the Torah in this way, have undoubtedly had an incomplete picture of its intention—but to their credit they have certainly advocated that Yeshua the Messiah did not come to completely abolish the Torah, and perhaps replace it with an under-disciplined way of living by the Spirit. What is often classified as composing the “moral law” makes up a considerable bulk of commandments in the Torah.

It can be rather easy for us to criticize the approach of dividing the Torah into divisions like the so-called “moral law” and “ceremonial law.” Rather than be negative toward it, though, we need to instead recognize how figures like Calvin or Wesley, from the Sixteenth and Eighteenth Centuries respectively, were products of their time. They lacked many of the Jewish sources and academic dialogue with the Synagogue, from which Twentieth and Twenty-First Century scholars benefit. They did the absolute best which they could, by utilizing little more than the Biblical text by itself in Hebrew and Greek, various extant historical works like Josephus and Philo, the writings of the Church Fathers, and different figures from classical history. Even though Protestant countries in Europe were a bit more liberal and understanding toward the Jewish community than their Roman Catholic counterparts, it was not until the Nineteenth Century when Christian scholars began to really have access to ancient Jewish literature like the Mishnah, Talmud, or Midrashim. Only in the more modern era has direct access to the lands of the Bible become commonplace—not to mention the discovery of texts like the Dead Sea Scrolls in 1947! And, how long has it taken such information to finally filter down to the average layperson?

Today's Messianic people need to appropriately recognize and highly laud the positive benefits which many of our Protestant Christian forbearers have left us. We should be able to emphasize the areas of strong theological agreement and ideological commonality, in our quest to have an even healthier appreciation of the Torah in our faith practice and integration of our Jewish Roots. None of us should ever be caught making unfounded claims about all of the past generations of Christians somehow being “lawless,” perhaps in violation of the Fifth Commandment (Exodus 20:12; Deuteronomy 5:16), when many of them clearly did not benefit from the information and resources in Biblical Studies which we possess today. On the contrary, all of us know of Christians in our past history—or even immediate history, or personal discipleship—who made significant contributions to society and were greatly instrumental in the spread of the gospel and the transformative love of Christ to the unsaved of Planet Earth! Many of them had a very high regard for the Law of Moses and the Old Testament for guiding their faith in the Lord.

In many cases, such previous generations may specifically include various godly and saved persons from our own families, who may very well have followed the Mosaic Law and Ten Commandments to the best of their understanding. We have the definite responsibility to honor and respect their legacies to us, and to recognize the awesome task we have at letting the heritage they have given us, encourage us to continue forward in our faith's reformation (cf. Hebrews 12:1). I ask you to ponder the thoughts of my late first cousin twice removed, Dr. Charles L. Allen (1913-2005), formerly the pastor of Grace Methodist Church in Atlanta, GA and First Methodist Church in Houston, TX (and who interestingly enough led many Christians on guided tours to Israel). In his best-selling book God's Psychiatry, he wrote the following on the importance of the Ten Commandments:

“We have these rules, known as The Ten Commandments, recorded in Exodus 20. They are not only the basis of conduct, both moral and spiritual, but also the basis of peace and prosperity for the individual and for the world. The Bible says, 'The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God' (Psalm 14:1), and it is only a fool who thinks he is big enough or smart enough to violate the unchangeable laws of the eternal God and get by with it. No man can break God's law, he breaks only himself."<sup>vi</sup>

Among the many things that I have written since 2004, The New Testament Validates Torah has served as the main, and sometimes the only book, that those who encounter my materials will read. Much of the reason for this is self obvious: today's Messianic people have many questions about the validity and relevance of the Torah or Law of Moses, from the Apostolic Writings or New Testament. Does the New Testament abolish the Torah? Or, does the New Testament uphold its validity?

The last time I visited this publication was during a five month period from December 2010-April 2011, when the 2004 edition of The New Testament Validates Torah was doubled in size, particularly as my seminary exegetical skills were able to be help prepare it for a paperback and eBook release. My intention in late 2010 was to refine some of the arguments in favor of Torah validity, substantiating them with a fair modicum of engagement from the works of various Christian scholars and theologians who recognize that the Law as a whole has not been abolished by the sacrificial work of the Messiah, and that it at least serves as a guide Believers' ethics and morality. It also strived to fairly dialogue with those Christian scholars and theologians who do believe that the Law of Moses was abolished and was intended exclusively for the pre-resurrection period. I am very pleased to say that this previous edition has well served the purpose of not only helping to defend the validity of God's Torah for His people in the post-resurrection era, but that it also has helped to quell an ever-present problem in Messianic Bible teaching: making things more simplistic and disengaged from Biblical Studies.

The 2010s were been a very productive time for Outreach Israel Ministries and Messianic Apologetics. In December 2012, the biggest transition we have ever made took place, as we relocated from Central Florida back to North Texas. 2013-2015 saw the release of three massive volumes to our Messianic Helper Series (Torah, Kosher, Sabbath). In 2016 we finished commentaries on the Pauline Epistles in the Practical Messianic series. Not to be overlooked, was the Summer 2015 transition of TNN Online (Theology News Network) to Messianic Apologetics. Paralleling this in the wider Messianic world, were the significant releases of the Messianic Jewish Family Bible—Tree of Life Version (TLV) in 2014, and The Complete Jewish Study Bible (CJSB) in 2016.

Today as we prepare to close out the 2010s, I had received a number of prompts from the Lord, in knowing that The New Testament Validates Torah was going to need a substantial update. This edition, which has been prepared throughout 2017, has taken into consideration much of the mass of material that Outreach Israel Ministries and Messianic Apologetics have produced in the past five to seven years. As a result, there has been a refinement of various points from the 2012 edition, many new Bible passages involving Torah validity not limited to general Torah relevance are now addressed, and various entries from commentaries and other publications have been transplanted into this one. It is my sincere hope and prayer that you find this resource to not be overwhelming, given its massive size, but instead be something which you can frequently access and reference, as you seek answers to your questions!

J.K. McKee
Spring 2017

---

<sup>vi</sup> Charles L. Allen, God's Psychiatry (Grand Rapids: Fleming H. Revell, 1953), pp 45-46.

2024 Status Edition

The ongoing validity of God's Torah for the post-resurrection era, is a conviction held by most throughout the Messianic sphere of influence. For almost two decades (2004-2024), one of the main reasons people have sought out my books and commentaries, has been to see me vigorously defend the ongoing relevance of the Law of Moses for today's Messiah followers. Since 2012, when the massive Reference Edition paperback of The New Testament Validates Torah was released, it is fair to conclude that this resource may very much be regarded as the flagship publication of Outreach Israel Ministries. It has been used to answer many questions, prompt further studies, and has even started a few small groups.

Some significant developments have taken place since 2012, prompting the release of the 2024 Status Edition. This started in late 2012 with our family's relocation from Central Florida back to North Texas, as we saw ourselves reintegrated into the Messianic Jewish community—where we originally got our start on this quest. In June 2015, TNN Online or the Theology News Network, transitioned into Messianic Apologetics. 2017 saw the release of the significantly enlarged New Testament Validates Torah MAXIMUM EDITION, which incorporated many new passages, transplanting material from our for the Practical Messianic commentary series—going slightly beyond just the general validity or relevance of the Torah.

To be sure, both inside and outside the Messianic sphere of influence, there have been things taking place. A more clear distinction between the Messianic movement and Hebrew Roots movement, is far more apparent in 2024 than it was in 2012. The former is engaged with matters of Israel and the Jewish community, Jewish ministry and evangelism, and standing against anti-Semitism. The latter is more known for dismissing the positive contributions of the Jewish Synagogue and evangelical Protestantism, as well as being a hotbed for all manner of false teachings and conspiracies.

Many non-Jewish Believers in the various independent Torah movements, have not always been pleased by a frequent lack of gospel proclamation or emphasis on the work of the Holy Spirit. What good does it do any non-Jewish Believer in Israel's Messiah, for example—to do outward things of Torah such as the seventh-day Sabbath/Shabbat, appointed times or moedim, or eat a kosher style of diet—if it is not also enjoined with some participation in the Romans chs. 9-11 trajectory of salvation history: “all Israel will be saved” (Romans 11:26)?

For our own ministry, in getting reconnected to Messianic Judaism and the Messianic mission—those who have followed us have seen us more clearly emphasize matters of Jewish outreach, evangelism, Israel solidarity, and the question of whether non-Jewish Believers doing outward things of Torah are truly called by the Lord into this. Are various people truly maturing as a genuine work of the Holy Spirit in their lives, as the power of the New Covenant writes God's commandments onto a redeemed heart and mind (Jeremiah 31:31-34; Ezekiel 36:25-27; cf. Hebrews 8:7-13)? Or, have many taken on a lifestyle of Torah for other reasons—the least of which would be to promote works righteousness and/or an inflexible legalism?

The 2024 Status Edition of The New Testament Validates Torah may be considered a freshening up of the 2012 Reference Edition. No significant theological changes are witnessed, as much as a consideration for what has transpired in the Messianic sphere of influence—as well as in our wider world. A dozen years ago, we did not have to contend with the legalization of homosexual marriage in the United States, growing controversies of LGBTQ+, and now an exponential rise in global anti-Semitism. Three appendices have been incorporated into this material, which readers can hopefully appreciate as the discussion from Torah validity and relevance has continued.

I pray that the Lord will continue to allow The New Testament Validates Torah to be a resource which is able to help many in their Messianic experience of faith!

J.K. McKee
May 2024

Almost two years since the release of the 2024 Status Edition of The New Testament Validates Torah, the much larger The New Testament Validates Torah MAXIMUM EDITION has been appropriately updated as well. Much of this has been to see it conform to the 2024 Status Edition, as well as take into account newly updated commentaries in Messianic Apologetics' Practical Messianic series. I expect that many of you will continue to find that The New Testament Validates Torah MAXIMUM EDITION has packed as much information, as possible, into a single volume on Torah relevance.

J.K. McKee
Winter 2026

PART I

HAS THE LAW
REALLY BEEN ABOLISHED?

-1-

CHRISTIAN MISUNDERSTANDING OR AN ANTINOMIAN ASSAULT?

In the quest for Biblical continuity, we must accept the whole canon of Scripture as being the inspired, inerrant Word of God for the Believer: “All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness, so that all God’s people may be thoroughly equipped for every good work” (2 Timothy 3:16-17, TNIV). God’s Word must be able to convict us regarding sin, and how we are to live and properly conduct ourselves in the world: “For the word of God is living and active and sharper than any two-edged sword, and piercing as far as the division of soul and spirit, of both joints and marrow, and able to judge the thoughts and intentions of the heart” (Hebrews 4:12, NASU).

Holy Scripture, coupled with presence of the Holy Spirit filling our hearts and minds, is to guide and convict us regarding what we should and should not be doing, and how men and women of God are to properly live their lives pleasing Him. As we examine Scripture, we must be willing to put any preconceived ideas about God and His Word aside, and let the Bible speak for itself in its totality, with our ultimate loyalty being to the text—and not a particular theological tradition or ideology. It is imperative that as we do this, we must not hesitate to compare multiple English Bible translations, and examine original meanings of Hebrew and Greek words and phrases in their proper context. We must know what the historical background behind a Biblical text is. We need to have an ample idea about what various scholars and specialists have proposed and commented upon. Above all, we must strive to be pleasing to our Heavenly Father, as we allow His love to change us from within and guide us to share the good news of His Son with all.

The issue of the validity (or even relevancy) of God’s Law, contained in the Pentateuchal books of Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, is controversial for many of today’s modern Christians who claim to obey Him. Millions of Christian people have dismissed the foundational instruction of Moses’ Teaching, and not only find themselves ignoring or dismissing God’s commandments in the Law—but they find themselves living in ungodly ways in broad discontinuity to the example given by our Lord Yeshua (Jesus). Somehow, many believe that “freedom in Christ” equates to not being held to any set of standards or code of conduct by God, as opposed to being set free from the bondage and insidious influences of sin. Many, while rightfully recognizing that salvation is by grace (Ephesians 2:8-9), purposefully overlook how redeemed men and women are to demonstrate good works resultant of such salvation (Ephesians 2:10).

Yeshua the Messiah issued a rather sober word, when informing His followers that at a definite point in the future, “The Son of Man will send forth His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all stumbling blocks, and those who commit lawlessness, and will throw them into the furnace of fire; in that place there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth” (Matthew 13:41-42, NASU). Fortunately there are many Christian people today, who will never fall into this category, even if they may have an incomplete understanding or perspective on the importance of God’s Law. But then again, there are many others who are not interested in obeying the Lord and changing their lives. They are the kinds of people who, most sadly, live forth that errant Corinthian slogan refuted by the Apostle Paul: “Everything is permissible for me” (1 Corinthians 6:12, NIV). There are many who express some degree of belief in the Bible, yet they are not willing to expel any effort to follow any of the Bible's instructions, making the necessary changes to their lives.

Many contemporary, conservative evangelical pastors, will tell their churches that God's people today should obey the laws of the land in which they reside on the basis of Paul's words in Romans 13. Yet while Christians are to obey human government, at least to a wide degree as it provides some important civil services, many of the same will say that the Law of God—perhaps including the Ten Commandments—was either “abolished” by Jesus or “nailed to the cross.” Some would see this as being a bit inconsistent: heed secular law, but do not heed Divine law? Given the importance which the Torah of Moses plays within not only the Tanach or Old Testament, and how the Prophets of Israel continually called the people back to a path of obedience—but the significance it has within the teachings of the Messiah Himself and His Apostles—it is easy to see how some of today's Christian leaders have taken various liberties in regard to Scripture.

Of course, it is not surprising to find out that many of today's pastors and theologians have an answer to why the Law of Moses is to not really guide, or in some cases be that important, for evangelical Protestant Believers. Some of these answers regard ecclesiology, and surround a view that the Law was only given to Israel, and not a second group of elect known as “the Church.” Some of these answers are theological, and concern presuppositional viewpoints which hold that only those who lived in the pre-resurrection era prior to the arrival of Jesus were to concern themselves with the Torah. In some cases, mostly among more liberal theologians, what composes the Torah is largely thought to not be the product of a real historical figure named Moses, but rather various literary sources and mythologies strewn together after the Babylonian exile in the Sixth Century B.C.E. (the JEDP Documentary Hypothesis).

All three of these vantage points take some rather severe liberties in regard to the integrity of Scripture. If not rectified, I know that I have a concern that many prominent theologians and Bible expositors will be held directly responsible by the Lord for keeping zealous Believers desiring mature instruction away from heeding Moses' Teaching (cf. Mark 9:42; Matthew 18:6; Luke 17:2). A relatively conservative Believer such as myself is well within his rights when he asks: If more Christians today taught that the Law of Moses were to be followed, would we even have debates over whether things like homosexuality or abortion on demand were sin? Simply comparing the condition of much of the evangelical Church from when my two parents raised me in the mid-to-late 1980s, and the way things considerably devolved to the mid-to-late 2010s, and now the mid-2020s, some significant reevaluation in terms of the validity and relevance of the Torah is sorely needed and is most imperative.

If more of the contemporary Church actually did believe that the Law of Moses were valid instruction, there would be no debate at all over whether homosexuality, pre-marital sex, or abortion were sins—or even if they could be tolerated. The Torah plainly denounces these things as sin,<sup>1</sup> and for most cases this level of offense originally merited a capital death penalty. It is true that there are evangelical Protestants who recognize these things as sin, but who do believe that the Law of Moses was for a previous age. They rightly argue that the Apostolic Scriptures or New Testament speak against these sorts of offenses,<sup>2</sup> but how strong an argument do they really have when they have chosen to be purposefully cut off from the Tanach or Old Testament?

It is imperative that we think critically and speak out about these sorts of issues, “accurately handling the word of truth” (2 Timothy 2:15, NASU), seeking full compliance with the entire Bible and purpose of God from Genesis-Revelation. We must not allow ourselves to be intimidated by

---

<sup>1</sup> Homosexuality: Leviticus 18:22; 20:13; adultery: Exodus 20:14; Deuteronomy 5:18; Leviticus 20:10; Deuteronomy 22:24; abortion: Exodus 21:22-25.

<sup>2</sup> Homosexuality: Romans 1:26-27; 1 Corinthians 6:9; 1 Timothy 1:10; 2 Peter 2:10; Jude 7; adultery/fornication: Mark 7:21; Matthew 5:27-28; Acts 15:20, 29; 21:25; 1 Corinthians 5:10; 6:9; Galatians 5:19-21; Ephesians 5:3-5; Colossians 3:5-8; 1 Thessalonians 4:3-8; 1 Peter 2:11-18; Revelation 2:14, 20; 9:21.

others or what they might think, as we should seek only to please our Heavenly Father and use the reasoning skills and abilities He has given us to probe His Word for answers, in order to be effective servants of His in the world.

When comparing worldly laws to the Lord's eternal ordinances, which ones have priority? The answer is most obvious. The Apostle Paul asserted in Philippians 3:20, "our citizenship is in heaven, from which also we eagerly wait for a Savior, the Lord Yeshua the Messiah" (NASU). As citizens of God's Kingdom, we are to obey His instructions. Our loyalty to God and to His Word must eventually override our loyalty to any human theology, as useful as much of it may be at times.

Yeshua said in the Last Days that "Because lawlessness is increased, most people's love will grow cold" (Matthew 24:12, NASU). What is this to mean? Do those who consciously disobey or disregard the Torah not love God? Are they practitioners of lawlessness? These are some very strong words from the Lord. None of us should ever want to be among those labeled with the negative moniker: "lawless." We surely do not want to be considered loveless, who may be regarded as demonstrating utter hatred toward our fellow human beings. Most importantly, none of us wants to be consigned to a place of "weeping and gnashing of teeth"<sup>3</sup> for eternity. Perhaps it is time that we all begin to seek the Lord, truly asking Him how we are to obey Him, and imploring Him for answers to various difficult-to-understand Bible passages.

An Innocent Dismissal of God's Law?

On at least one front surrounding the issue of the Torah being relevant to today's born again Believers, it can be somewhat understood why many pastors and Bible teachers prefer not to focus too much time dealing with the "Old Testament." How many of today's pastors really want to have to deal with the many questions and criticisms lodged at them regarding controversies pertaining to whether there really was a King David or Conquest of Canaan, an Exodus of the Ancient Israelites from Egypt, and of course what Genesis chs. 1-11 really mean in light of modern science?<sup>4</sup> We cannot totally blame some spiritual leaders for wanting to avoid these kinds of debates, and instead simply trying to focus their assemblies on the teachings of the Lord Jesus and His love for all.

The problem, of course, is asking when and if a pastor's congregation of Believers is going to be able to (ever) handle the solid food of God's Word (Hebrews 5:12-13), and with it various Biblical controversies. Because many contemporary pastors have consciously chosen—rather poorly—not to get involved with the various issues of the Tanach's reliability, as a sad result too many Believers have been withheld from desperately needed instruction in the Law of Moses. The environment which they needed to facilitate further growth, maturation, and insight into the Scriptures has not always been present, or in some cases even been allowed.

It is very true that much is lost when the commandments of the Torah are not frequently understood against an historical backdrop in the Ancient Near East. The meaning of instructions such as "The sons of the third generation [of Edomites and Egyptians] who are born to them may enter the assembly of the LORD" (Deuteronomy 23:8, NASU), can only be understood within the narrative of the Torah, and the relationship of Ancient Israel to those two groups. Likewise, many of the commandments which Bible readers encounter, while seeming a bit archaic or outdated when compared to Twentieth and Twenty-First Century legal codes, afforded many rights and privileges to people within Ancient Israel in the Thirteenth Century B.C.E., who would not have otherwise been defended in either Mesopotamia or Canaan. To understand the Pentateuch, no different than

---

<sup>3</sup> Cf. Matthew 8:12; 13:42, 50; 22:13; 24:51; 25:30; Luke 13:28.

<sup>4</sup> For a fair-minded analysis and refutation of the practice of historical minimalism, whereby the Scriptural record is not treated as a valid testimony to support its own claims, consult Iain Provan, V. Philips Long, and Tremper Longman III, A Biblical History of Israel (Louisville: Westminster John Knox, 2003).

For an excellent analysis of the relevant Creationist data, the author highly recommends Hugh Ross, Navigating Genesis: A Scientist's Journey through Genesis 1-II (Covina, CA: Reasons to Believe, 2014).

any other part of the Bible, one must recognize its original setting and the initial audience to whom it was issued: Ancient Israel delivered from Egyptian servitude, being prepared to enter into the Promised Land.<sup>5</sup>

While there are definitely ancient historical and cultural issues to consider when reading the Torah—as well as a whole host of ancient Jewish interpretations and bodies of Rabbinical commentary as well—understanding its commandments is not something as difficult as one may think. The Lord exclaimed, “For this commandment which I command you today is not too difficult for you, nor is it out of reach” (Deuteronomy 30:11, NASU), meaning of course it is “not too baffling for you” (NJPS). Even with some commandments in the Torah clearly given for an original Israelite audience and ancient level of technology, which cannot be followed in a modern world, they still very much inform disciples about the character of the God of Israel—especially as Israel’s Law was to be quite subversive to the laws of its pagan neighbors. Such commandments are to be placed upon the hearts and minds of God’s people even today, so that they might understand His redemptive purposes for humanity throughout the multiplied millennia of history.

It is entirely inappropriate to regard the Law of Moses as only being applicable or relevant for another era. The very promise of the New Covenant was that God’s Torah would be supernaturally transcribed onto the regenerated and cleansed hearts of His people (Jeremiah 31:31-34; Ezekiel 36:25-27). Likewise, it is anticipated that in the Last Days, those from all over the world will stream to Zion to be taught from the Law (Micah 4:2-4; Isaiah 2:2-3). These missional texts—highly valued by many Christians, and most especially varied Old Testament theologians today—place the Torah of Moses squarely within the declaration of gospel message. While salvation in Yeshua (Jesus) is freely available to all who desire reconciliation with their Creator (Ephesians 2:8-9), the Torah provides the necessary instructions in order for the redeemed to practice the good works He expects of His people (Ephesians 2:10).

No conservative, evangelical Believer today wants to ever instinctively be accused of outright dismissing the Law of God, so instead there are various theologians who advocate that Believers are to follow a “law of Christ” (cf. Galatians 6:2). Rather than this “law of Messiah” being Yeshua’s own authoritative interpretation and application of the Torah (cf. Matthew 5:17-19), it would instead be something widely dissimilar from it. Even though it would properly embody His example of self-sacrifice and service, such a “law of Christ” would make a stark break from the Law of Moses in many areas. In one textbook I had to use in my seminary studies, How to Read the Bible for All Its Worth by Gordon D. Fee and Douglas Stuart—which for the most part is generally quite good in terms of the variety of topics it covers—its authors explain their position that there is definitely a distinction to be maintained between the Apostolic Scriptures and Tanach Scriptures, being of the position that “The Old Testament is not our Testament.”<sup>6</sup> They summarize,

“Only that which is explicitly renewed from the Old Testament Law can be considered part of the New Testament ‘law of Christ’ (cf. Gal 6:2). Included in such a category would be the Ten Commandments, since they are cited in various ways in the New Testament...and the two great commandments from Deuteronomy 6:5 and Leviticus 19:18. No other specific Old Testament laws can be proved to be strictly binding on Christians, valuable as it is for Christians to know all of the laws.”<sup>7</sup>

Fee and Stuart’s mention of the Ten Commandments as being a part of this independent “law of Christ” is actually somewhat novel, as many would argue instead that the Ten Commandments are part of an abolished Law of Moses. Yet, in clearly wanting to regulate the Torah as only being relevant instruction for Ancient Israel, they issue a degree of caution—especially because of how

---

<sup>5</sup> For a further discussion of a variety of relevant issues, consult the author’s article “Addressing the Frequently Avoided Issues Messianics Encounter in the Torah” (appearing in the Messianic Torah Helper).

<sup>6</sup> Gordon D. Fee and Douglas Stuart, How to Read the Bible for All Its Worth (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 2003), 167.

<sup>7</sup> Ibid., 169.

significant obeying the Torah is throughout the remainder of the Tanach. For example, Fee and Stuart emphasize how “in the Old Testament the righteous regularly express delight in God’s law (e.g., Pss 19 and 119).”<sup>8</sup> Is their implication that Bible-believing Christians today should not express some level of spiritual delight, satisfaction, or at least appreciation for the Torah? Is it somehow wrong for Believers to pray to the Lord, “I delight to do Your will, O my God; Your Law is within my heart” (Psalm 40:8, NASU), or “If Your law had not been my delight, then I would have perished in my affliction” (Psalm 119:92, NASU)?<sup>9</sup> Even if our salvation is to be certainly found in the finished work of the Messiah at Golgotha (Calvary)—and by no means in our various human actions—are we to really not admire God’s Instruction in the Law of Moses that much?

Many of today’s Bible teachers think that the Torah is just a part of past Biblical history, and is not really to be a part of a born again Believer’s spirituality in the present. Often not acknowledged, though, is that the main alterations which have occurred in terms of the relationship that God’s people have to the Torah, relate to the Levitical priesthood and animal sacrifices (Hebrews 7:18), which were clearly brought in to regulate sin (Galatians 3:19). Such a priesthood has been set aside (at least until the Millennium given the tenor of Ezekiel chs. 40-44) with the final sacrifice of Yeshua now offered (Hebrews 10:12, 14), and the Torah’s capital penalties have been absorbed by His atoning work (Colossians 2:14).<sup>10</sup> Changes which have not occurred concern how God’s people are to live and conduct themselves as His upright representatives in greater society, as Deuteronomy 26:18 admonishes, “The LORD has today declared you to be His people, a treasured possession, as He promised you, and that you should keep all His commandments” (NASU).

Many of those who emphasize that Believers are to follow a separate “Law of Christ,” completely independent from the Torah, are by no means lawless or immoral people, as many of them truly live forth the greatest commandments to love God and neighbor.<sup>11</sup> But, many of these persons can be quite under-informed and rather anemic when it comes to actually fleshing out what the “Law of Christ” might actually be. Most commonly, a separate and independent “Law of Christ” is believed to compose Yeshua’s teachings in His Sermon on the Mount. Yet when this is asserted, no honest reader of Matthew chs. 5-7 can overlook the fact that Yeshua’s teaching was predicated on the authority of Moses’ Teaching, with the Lord Himself not only having declared His intention not to abolish the Torah (Matthew 5:17), but to fulfill it and bring it to its acme or climax in His actions and ministry. While Moses was by no means the Messiah, to entirely disconnect the Torah from Yeshua’s teachings is a significant mistake.

Real Antinomianism in Our Day

When one seeks to defend the validity and relevance of the Torah for Messiah followers living today, it is common that you will see the term “antinomian” used. This is a technical, theological word which is often used to describe lawlessness. Baker’s Dictionary of Theology states that

“The word comes from the Greek anti, against, and nomos, law, and signifies opposition to law. It refers to the doctrine that the moral law is not binding upon Christians as a rule of life. In a wider sense it is applied to the views of fanatics who refuse to recognize any law but their own subjective ideas which they usually claim are from the Holy Spirit” (Baker’s Dictionary of Theology).<sup>12</sup>

---

<sup>8</sup> Ibid.

<sup>9</sup> Also to be considered could be: Psalm 1:2; 119:77, 174.

<sup>10</sup> Consult the article “The Significance of the Messiah Event” (appearing in the Messianic Torah Helper).

<sup>11</sup> Deuteronomy 6:5; Leviticus 19:18; cf. Mark 12:31; Matthew 19:19; 22:39; Luke 10:27; Romans 13:9; Galatians 5:14; James 2:8.

<sup>12</sup> Alexander M. Renwick, “Antinomianism,” in Everett F. Harrison, ed., Baker’s Dictionary of Theology (Grand Rapids: Baker Book House, 1960), 48.

The Westminster Dictionary of Theological Terms indicates how how “It has appeared periodically throughout church history.”<sup>13</sup>

Many of today’s Messianic people will accuse various modern Christians of being “antinomian” because they do not keep the seventh-day Sabbath/Shabbat, remember the appointed times or moedim of Leviticus 23, or eat a kosher style of diet. While I am among those who consider these things to be valid and worthwhile practices for Believers, I recognize how there are many sincerely born again people who have not (yet) made them a part of their faith practice. I think it is more worthwhile that our attention be focused, especially now in the 2020s, upon some of the true antinomianism which has been growing in evangelical Protestantism, which Messianic Believers and many evangelical Believers alike can agree is most disturbing and revolting. Perhaps if we can understand how we got to this point, then appropriate steps can be taken to solve the problem.

In the first two to three decades of the Twenty-First Century, it has become self-obvious that far too much of the organized Christian Church in the West has tolerated behavior and sin which my parents’ generation, and certainly my grandparents’ generation, would never have allowed. The Apostle Paul decreed how “in the last days difficult times will come,” specifying how there will be various “haters of good,” and “lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God” (2 Timothy 3:1, 3, 4, NASU). While there have undeniably been various other low points throughout religious history, the kinds of discussions which go on regarding “sin,” among a few of the theologians and Bible teachers I may read today, really is utterly ridiculous—and at times down right horrifying. Even what are perceived to be “New Testament commandments” of Jesus are largely dismissed, as the only thing which is said to really matter is just some rather vague or ever-fluxuating concept of “love.”

There is a significantly undiagnosed reason why various liberal theologians and pastors seem to be having more and more success among today’s Christians: conservatives who largely dismissed the relevance of the Torah did not teach as much on sin as they should have. Look at the degradation of just basic ethics and morality over the past half century. When people are not taught that “sin is lawlessness” (1 John 3:4)—even in an incomplete sense of just composing Divine ethical and moral instructions—then sin can quickly become whatever people “feel” is wrong. While the Holy Spirit indwelling the holy ones or saints is to surely be present to convict us, if we have no guidelines of what sin is from the Holy Scriptures, then we can have a tendency to make “sin” into whatever we want, or even what best fits our fallen human agenda.

Does this mean that some might actually manifest a modern-day form of Judges 17:6, “everyone did as they saw fit” (TNIV)? Not submitting oneself to the instruction of God in the Torah, much less being informed by its commandments, has allowed far too many claiming Believers to subjectively define sin from an errant, mortal, and probably a rather fleshly-oriented point of view—rather than from the standpoint of our Eternal Creator.

While there are many truly saved and born again evangelical Believers, who just need to start reading more of their Bibles on a more frequent basis—and who will be convicted by the Lord to change their various habits—there is an immensely singular controversy in contemporary evangelicalism which has been directly caused by dismissing the Torah or Law of Moses. The biggest controversy in evangelical Protestantism today easily regards the validity of homosexuality, with debates over the possible ordination of homosexual clergy splitting many churches and denominations.<sup>14</sup> What is the basic logic of those arguing in favor of homosexuality being acceptable for Christian people? It is that the sexual instructions which prohibit such behavior were only intended for Old Testament times and the culture of Ancient Israel (Leviticus 18:22; 20:13), and that Jesus abolished the Law!

---

<sup>13</sup> Donald S. McKim, Westminster Dictionary of Theological Terms (Louisville: Westminster John Knox, 1996), 13.

<sup>14</sup> The various positions of this debate are accessible in Dan O. Via and Robert A.J. Gagnon, Homosexuality and the Bible: Two Views (Minneapolis: Fortress Press, 2003); Preston Sprinkle, William Loader, Megan K. DeFanza, Wesley Hill, and Stephen R. Holmes, Two Views on Homosexuality, the Bible, and the Church (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 2016).

Jack Rogers, formerly an evangelical Presbyterian, states some of the reasons how he came to believe that homosexuality is now acceptable:

“The Hebrew word toevah translated as ‘abomination,’ refers here to something that makes a person ritually unclean, such as having intercourse with a woman while she is menstruating. Ritual purity was considered necessary to distinguish the Israelites from their pagan neighbors....Jesus was concerned [only] with purity of heart...When we see Jesus as the fulfillment of the law (Matt. 5:17), we understand that our challenge is not meticulously to maintain culturally conditioned laws, but rather, with Jesus, to love God and love our neighbor (Matt. 22:36-40). When these texts in Leviticus are taken out of their historical and cultural context and applied to faithful, God-worshipping Christians who are homosexual, it does violence to them.”<sup>15</sup>

Since the legalization of homosexual marriage in the United States in 2015, a definite spiritual shift has taken place in the evangelical Protestant world, with many leaders and pastors steadily embracing homosexuality as something not actually prohibited by God’s Word. While it may be true that there are areas of significant improvement which many of today’s Believers need to make—as the Lord Yeshua died for all sinners, and none of us needs to be found making a final judgment on any particular person’s salvation—the Apostle Paul did not at all consider homosexual practice to just be something cultural, but directly consequential of humanity’s general rebellion against the Creator God (Romans 1:26-27).<sup>16</sup> I am sorry to say that the evangelical Christianity which made a rather genuine and positive contribution to my family in the 1980s and 1990s, now finds itself in its twilight period.<sup>17</sup>

Many of the evangelical Protestants whom today’s Messianic Believers are likely to encounter, rightly oppose homosexuality as a valid lifestyle, and the ordination of gays and lesbians as clergy. They oppose abortion-on-demand, pre-marital sex, and would certainly uphold a Torah ethic in many places, being social conservatives. They also want, as all of us should, to demonstrate Yeshua’s love to those who are in error. But, it cannot be denied that a major factor in today’s evangelical Protestantism being radically split on these issues, is precisely because the Torah has been jettisoned from its collective psyche and spiritual ideology. Even among some of your very conservative, evangelical Believers of today—when the Law of Moses is entirely relegated to past Biblical history—is it at all possible that important ground has been given over to the enemy? In the past several decades, Satan has certainly done an excellent job at wreaking havoc on contemporary evangelicalism. Much of the culmination of this has been witnessed via the homosexual agenda (although heterosexual sins certainly abound as well). Because too many people are not quite sure what to do with the Torah, has a true antinomian assault been unleashed upon too much of the Body of Messiah?

Appreciating the Hebraic and Jewish Roots of Our Faith

No one should be at all surprised, as a direct result of the magnitude of contemporary Christian ethics and morality being skewed—why many evangelical Believers (in spite of what some

---

<sup>15</sup> Jack Rogers, Jesus, the Bible, and Homosexuality: Explode the Myths, Heal the Church (Louisville: Westminster John Knox, 2006), pp 72-73.

<sup>16</sup> Consult the Messianic Apologetics FAQ, “Romans 1:26-27,” which includes an analysis of the clause para phusin or “against nature.”

<sup>17</sup> I am even more sorry to report that in Spring 2015, the main person responsible for conferring my M.A. in Biblical Studies upon me at Asbury Theological Seminary, laying his hands and praying over me, Dr. Steve Harper, publicly came out in favor of homosexual marriage, albeit in his retirement. Even more lamentable than this, though, was the utter silence from many of his former faculty colleagues, in publicly condemning him.

Much of Harper’s transition to accepting same-sex relationships as being acceptable to God is covered in his book For the Sake of the Bride: Restoring the Church to Her Intended Beauty (Nashville: Abingdon, 2014).

denominations say) consciously know that they have ignored God's Instruction in the Old Testament for far too long and that this must be rectified. This is not to say that they want to dismiss with the teachings of Jesus or the New Testament in any way. Instead, what they want is a far more holistic Biblical worldview.

In the case of my own family throughout the 1980s and into the 1990s, once my late father Kimball McKee (1951-1992) came to faith in 1984, he was not only stirred to regularly study the Holy Scriptures—but he and my mother became acquainted with the Messianic Jewish teacher Zola Levitt and the Hebraic and Jewish Roots of Christianity. While much of this involved understanding how Jesus Christ prophetically fulfilled things such as the Passover, or how He will return in association with the Fall holidays of Rosh HaShanah and Yom Kippur<sup>18</sup>—it also definitely involved being a bit more aware of the Law of Moses and God's commandments. In the late 1980s and early 1990s, Kim McKee brought some rather early Messianic understanding into Christ United Methodist Church of Florence, KY, most notably by holding an educational Passover presentation during Holy Week right before Easter/Resurrection Sunday.

Before my father died and went to be with the Lord in 1992, he had been approved by his district superintendent of the United Methodist Church in Northern Kentucky for local pastoral ministry, and had he lived he would probably have remained in Methodism until some of the present circumstances being faced by evangelicalism at present. Yet, being raised by a good Presbyterian in my Grandad McKee, and having married the granddaughter of the highly regarded Methodist Bishop Marvin A. Franklin in my mother—my father would never have been among those who advocated some “Law of Christ” entirely independent from the Law of Moses in the Old Testament. I fully believe that were he still with us today, he would totally approve of the spiritual and ministry course which we have continued on in his stead, honoring the legacy he set before us.

While many evangelical Believers have known that they must heed the Torah's instruction in terms of the Ten Commandments, and the Torah's ethical, moral, and sexual instructions—much of the interest which has helped significantly grow the Messianic movement in the past several decades (1990s-2010s) has been because their interest in Moses' Teaching has not stopped there.

It is undeniable that the modern Messianic movement originally began as an evangelistic outreach of Jewish Believers to their fellow Jews who needed to know Yeshua as the Jewish Messiah. As many Jewish people came to saving faith in Yeshua the Messiah, they needed to establish communities where they would be able—as strange as it might sound to others—to still be Jewish. They could still observe the weekly Shabbat, the holidays of Israel, eat kosher, perform circumcisions and bar/bat mitzvah, use the siddur (prayer book) and wrap tefillin (phylacteries), and identify with their cultural Jewish heritage, traditions, and be involved with the State of Israel. In more recent days, however, the Messianic movement has also been a significant magnet for many sincere evangelical Believers, who have been led by the Lord to embrace their faith heritage in the Scriptures of Israel, and a life of Torah obedience, in a far more tangible and real way than just following the Law's ethical and moral instructions. These Believers want to live as much as they can like their Jewish Savior, and they want to be united in congregational fellowship with their fellow Jewish Believers as a testament to the “one new humanity” (Ephesians 2:15) which He has formed, itself a small snapshot of the greater reconciliation to come to the cosmos (Ephesians 1:21-23).

Of course, as this has taken place, and as the broad Messianic movement tends to have a very positive and even pro-active view of Torah observance—this has spurred on a great deal of questions, as well as much criticism. Most of this has come from various Christian persons, who when they witness families such as my own enter into the Messianic community and adopt a lifestyle of Torah obedience—keeping Shabbat, the appointed times, and eating a kosher style diet among other things—really wonder why we would do this. More often than not, those who are the most skeptical and critical (as opposed to those who are open-minded, but just not totally sure at present), do actually believe that the Law of Moses has been abolished by Yeshua the Messiah.

---

<sup>18</sup> Cf. Zola Levitt, The Seven Feasts of Israel (Dallas: Zola Levitt Ministries, 1979).

Aside from our Lord's own words which explicitly stand against any person who says that He came to abolish the Torah (Matthew 5:17ff), many of today's Christian people are unable to realize that throughout a great deal of Church history—the widespread dismissal of the Law of Moses which one witnesses has been one of the most common theological proofs used by the Jewish community against the Messiahship of Yeshua of Nazareth. Many religious Jews think that Jesus classifies, according to the Deuteronomy 13 warnings against false prophets, as a man who led people away from the Torah of Moses—at least because of the conduct of His later followers.<sup>19</sup>

Among various Jews, mostly academics, Jesus is of course approached from the perspective of basically being a good moralistic teacher or a kind of liberal social reformer. It is thought that some of His followers probably embellished some of His original teachings, given much of the Messianic fervor in First Century Judea. One who came along and is thought to really have “cashed in” on the Jesus message was Paul of Tarsus, perhaps as some opportunist who abused the message of the man from Nazareth. Among some Jews, Paul is thought to have taken the Jesus message out to Greeks and Romans, distorting it and promising them an easier way to Heaven or the world to come. This came by this man Paul teaching that those from the nations did not have to keep the Law of Moses. Jewish columnist David Klinghoffer writes the following in his book Why the Jews Rejected Jesus:

“Again and again, addressing Christians of Jewish and non-Jewish background, he granted full liberty from the law. ‘Now we are discharged from the law, dead to that which held us captive’ [Romans 7:6]. Christ was ‘the end of the law’ [Romans 10:4]....If he personally sometimes obeyed the laws, this was only for appearances’ sake. It made observant Jews who had not as yet accepted Christ feel comfortable. He admits this plainly: ‘To the Jews I become as a Jew, in order to win Jews; to those under the law I become as one under the law—that I might win those under the law...I have become all things to all men, that I might by all means save some’ [1 Corinthians 9:20, 22]....[I]t’s obvious that after a Jew had acquired Paul as his teacher, the full implications of the novel doctrine would be revealed to him. Henceforth this new Jewish believer would be ‘discharged’ from the commandments.”<sup>20</sup>

Such a view of these same Pauline passages is, quite sadly, confirmed in the words and conclusions of many of today's well-known and highly respected Christian theologians who precisely declare that Christ came to abolish the Mosaic Law. We can be overwhelmed with Jewish opinions over two millennia in terms of what they have thought about the message contained in the Messianic Scriptures, or what various Christian voices have said. Our job as responsible Bible readers, however, is to postulate whether is it entirely irreconcilable that the New Covenant expectation is “I will put My law within them and on their heart I will write it” (Jeremiah 31:33, NASU), with the Pauline assertion “Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes” (Romans 10:4, NASU)—a widespread and common view of this being some kind of termination.<sup>21</sup>

---

<sup>19</sup> It is very true that along with this, one of the other main reasons why many Jews throughout history have rejected Yeshua as Messiah, is because orthodox Christian theology affirms Him as being Divine, the LORD, God the Son. In much Jewish theology, however, the Messiah is to only be human. This can be a major area of disagreement within parts of the Messianic community, but one which must ultimately be guided by the claims of the Biblical text.

For a further discussion, consult the author's publication Salvation on the Line: The Nature of Yeshua and His Divinity, released in two volumes.

<sup>20</sup> David Klinghoffer, Why the Jews Rejected Jesus (New York: Three Leaves Press, 2005), pp 108-109.

Against: Pamela Eisenbaum, “On the Contrary, We Uphold the Law!”, in Paul Was Not a Christian: The Original Message of a Misunderstood Apostle (New York: HarperCollins, 2009), pp 208-239 where this liberal Jewish professor argues that Paul has been misunderstood in terms of opposing the Law. Contrary to someone like Klinghoffer, what she thinks he really opposes is Torah-keeping for non-Jews beyond basic moral prescriptions, but not Torah-keeping for Jews.

<sup>21</sup> Notable to this verse is recognizing that the NASB does list for Romans 10:4 the alternate reading “Or, goal” (Spiros Zodhiates, ed., Hebrew-Greek Key Study Bible, NASB [Chattanooga: AMG Publishers, 1994], 1498). More obvious would be how the

What do today's Messianic Believers do about this, who believe that the Law of Moses remains relevant instruction to be heeded by the redeemed?

Correcting Christian Misunderstandings

From a surface reading of many English Bibles to be sure, those who want to make the case that the Law of Moses has been nullified, are able to make seemingly “viable” positions against today's Messianic movement. They are able to take verses from the Apostolic Scriptures (New Testament), which if we just examined at face value in English, could suggest that the Torah has been done away with or abolished. But as any responsible Bible reader, who has invested an appropriate amount of time into the discipline of either inductive Bible study or exegesis knows—our appeal is ultimately to be to the source text which sits behind our English translations.

In this publication, The New Testament Validates Torah, we will make considerable utilization of the Greek Apostolic Scriptures and demonstrate why the Law of Moses was not at all abolished or nullified by Yeshua the Messiah, and why figures such as the Apostle Paul did not dispense with it either. Passages will be exegeted from a conservative Biblical perspective, with careful attention to the source text, and they will be engaged with an appropriate array of scholarly views—both for and against a pro-Torah position. Yet, as born again Believers who should have put our individual faith in the completed work of Yeshua the Messiah (Jesus Christ) on the tree, we must understand that in light of all the arguments we will be examining, His words relating to the Law of Moses stand primary:

“For truly I say to you, until heaven and earth pass away, not the smallest letter or stroke shall pass from the Law until all is accomplished” (Matthew 5:18, NASU; cf. Luke 16:17).

Letting Yeshua the Messiah, the LORD God made manifest in the flesh, be our Interpreter, we must conclude that the Torah has not yet passed away. Heaven and Earth still stand! Notably, the Messiah further stated, “Whoever then annuls one of the least of these commandments, and teaches others to do the same, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever keeps and teaches them, he shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven” (Matthew 5:19, NASU). At the very least, what the Lord said here is that one's status in the Kingdom would be determined by how he or she handled the Torah or Law of Moses. Those who teach from the Torah, affording it an honored place in one's Bible reading, and encouraging others to follow and value its commandments—will be considered great. Those who teach against the Torah and dishonor its instructions will be considered least.

I truly desire to see that no born again Believer ever be considered “least” in the Kingdom of Heaven, much less be considered lawless. We need to all be in compliance with the Word of the Lord and receive all of the great and awesome blessings which He has for us! I want to see people blessed by God, as opposed to being penalized by Him in any way.

Thankfully, as I have reviewed my own family's Christian history and the denominational traditions represented therein, I have been able to find various voices throughout post-Reformation history who have rightfully recognized that faithful Believers need to approach the issue of Biblical continuity from Genesis-Revelation with great care, skill, and sensitivity. Certainly as time has moved forward, and there has been more sustained contact with the lands of the Bible, greater research into the Biblical languages of Hebrew and Greek, and more historical and archaeological information to appropriate—some generations have had more “light” than others. Among these groups of Messiah followers spread across the centuries, though, is not only a definite desire to serve and please Him—making a sustained difference in the world—but also a need to recognize that there is a specific plan and purpose witnessed in the Holy Scriptures. Walter C. Kaiser, who is undoubtedly one of my most favorite evangelical theologians, expresses how only a Supreme and Omniscient God could be behind the marvelous tapestry of the Bible, giving it a single, unifying theme of redemption. In his book Recovering the Unity of the Bible, he summarizes,

---

2005 TNIV says “Christ is the culmination of the law,” but even more to the point would be the 2010 Common English Bible's “For Christ is the goal of the Law.”

“When a full document like the Bible is drawn from so many individual books written over such a long period of time, and the writers did not know each other and rarely were contemporaries of each other or even from the same continents, it is hard to imagine that any kind of coherence or ongoing strategy would be possible. But the Bible, extending over two testaments and some sixteen hundred years, and written by about forty writers in three languages, representing three continents, exhibits some strong general schemes that suggest a common archetypal plan and purpose in the story of redemption....If God was behind the production of all these contributions, then the unity is the result of a driving plan and the harmony reflects what he has willed and purposed.”<sup>22</sup>

With such an impetus of seeking a thematically-unified Bible behind many previous generations of faithful and Messiah-honoring Believers—it should be no surprise that in our day, among many seeking God’s truth, there is a highly renewed interest in the Torah or Law of Moses. One of the final admonitions of the Tanach Scriptures, interestingly enough, is actually: “Remember the law of Moses My servant, even the statutes and ordinances which I commanded him in Horeb for all Israel” (Malachi 4:4, NASU). Yet while previous generations of Christian people were limited in their understanding of Moses’ Teaching to perhaps only its moral and ethical instructions—however important and critical these may have been for their time—today’s emerging Messianic movement, being highly informed from Jewish theology, is able to promote an even wider scope of Torah relevance and obedience for God’s people.

No one, most especially myself, denies how the rise of the Messianic movement has led to a number of Christian persons vehemently opposing God’s Torah. Some of this comes as an over-reaction to the bad attitudes of various extremists and fundamentalist voices identifying themselves as either “Messianic” or “Hebrew Roots,” and their over-inflated rhetoric against some of the ills of historic Christianity. At the same time, though, even when a message of Torah validity is presented fairly, reasonably, and in concert with the guidance of the Holy Spirit, the thrust of the New Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34; Ezekiel 36:25-27; Hebrews 8:8-12; 10:16-17), and a greater embodiment of God’s love and grace being central—there are still those who want absolutely nothing to do with it. They believe that the Apostolic Scriptures are on their side, and that the Law of Moses has been fully abolished and rendered inoperative. They sometimes believe that Torah observant Messianic people are trying to “earn their salvation,” or are perhaps even unsaved! Rather than just dismiss their claims, as far too many Messianic persons I know have done, we have to instead consider the requirement of Proverbs 18:17 upon us as responsible and mature people of God:

“The one who first states a case seems right, until the other comes and cross-examines”
(Proverbs 18:17, NRSV).

I believe that when you finish reading the analysis provided in The New Testament Validates Torah, that as a Messianic Believer you will be able to strongly defend the validity of Moses’ Teaching for born again Believers, when a Christian who thinks that the Law has somehow been abolished confronts you. If you are an evangelical Protestant investigating Messianic theological views, you will no doubt be challenged and be forced into the Scriptures to reevaluate many of the things you have either been taught or have heard in the past. Most importantly, for whomever you are: may the quest for all of us be to be in full compliance with the Word of God, and conform to the example which our Lord and Savior Yeshua the Messiah (Jesus Christ) demonstrated for us during His time on Earth.

---

<sup>22</sup> Walter C. Kaiser, Recovering the Unity of the Bible: One Continuous Story, Plan, and Purpose (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 2009), pp 20-21.

Does the New Testament Really Do Away With the Law?

Within Part I of The New Testament Validates Torah, we will be analyzing the specific views of a stereotypical evangelical Christian pastor, who believes that the Law of Moses was abolished by Jesus. The various reasons and objections to following the Torah which he offers are fairly common, in terms of what is commonly said when Messianic people interact with various Christian family members, friends, but above all acquaintances or certain associates from a church. We will analyze the statements which this “pastor” makes on a point-by-point basis. I think it is safe to say that these reasons constitute many of those you will often encounter as a Messianic Believer, who wants to live the life of our Lord Yeshua, by being obedient to the Torah.

The pastor’s comments are reproduced below, before we begin our review of his remarks:

Does the New Testament Really Do Away With the Law?

some thoughts on the Mosaic Law from a typical pastor<sup>23</sup>

The Law is a unit of 613 commandments given by God to the people of Israel. The word Law is sometimes used when referring to all Old Testament writings such as in John 10:34 and 15:25 when Jesus quotes Psalms and 1 Corinthians 14:21 when Paul quotes Isaiah. But it is important to remember that there is only one Law. When referring to the moral, ceremonial, and civil laws, we are speaking of three aspects of the Law, not three laws. Those who say we must keep the Law tell us that Jesus fulfilled the ceremonial and civil laws, but not the moral law.

First, the Law was given to point out our sins. “Why the Law then? It was added because of transgressions...” (Galatians 3:19). It is the standard that is used to show how sinful we are.

Many people think that the Law was given so that by keeping it we will become righteous. This is a wrong understanding of the Law. The Law is our referee to show us how many times that we step out of bounds. It shows how utterly filthy and wicked our sin is (Romans 7:13). In God’s eyes, even our righteousness is called filthy rags (Isaiah 64:6).

Second, it points to the Savior: “Therefore the Law has become our tutor to lead us to Christ, that we may be justified by faith” (Galatians 3:24). The Law not only points out the problem, but also the solution. It is our tutor (teacher) to lead us to Christ that we might be justified by faith, not by keeping the Law. Jesus paid for all of the sins of the world (1 John 2:2; 1 Peter 2:24), the very sins that the Law pointed out. The only way to receive forgiveness from sins is by receiving Jesus Christ into our lives because there is salvation in no one else (Acts 4:12).

---

<sup>23</sup> This analysis is loosely based on a discussion called “The Sabbath,” which originally appeared on the website of Cornerstone Church of Garden City, KS <odsgc.net/~cornerst/sabbath.htm> in 2000 (their church website is now <<http://cornerstone.one>> and this information has been subsequently removed), even though additional verses and passages have been added.

No one is able to keep the Law. Hebrews 7:18-19 tells us that the Law was set aside because of its weakness, because the Law made nothing perfect. As a matter of fact, the power of sin is in trying to keep the Law (1 Corinthians 15:56). This is why Paul said that the Law was given so that transgression might increase (Romans 5:20). Sin takes opportunity through the commandments and becomes alive by increasing the desires to break them (Romans 7:8-9).

Most people believe that the Law is “Laws” rather than “Law.” If we keep the entire Law and break only one, we are guilty of breaking them all. “For whoever keeps the whole law and yet stumbles in one point, he has become guilty of all” (James 2:10). The Law is not like a carton of eggs, where if you break 5 you still have 7 unbroken eggs. It is like a sheet of glass—if you break one part, the whole sheet is broken. If you keep one part of the Law, you are obligated to keep them all.

No one will be justified by the Law. “Because by the works of the Law no one will be justified in His sight; for through the Law comes the knowledge of sin” (Romans 3:20). If the Law were able to impart life, then righteousness would have been based on the Law (Galatians 3:21). But it can’t, so it isn’t. The following verses show that Christians are not obligated to keep the Old Testament Law:

*Indicates passages added to the original list

Isaiah 1:13-14: God hates the Jewish feasts of the Old Testament*

Ezekiel 20:12-26: God actually gave His people bad laws that they could not follow.*

Hosea 2:11: God has put an end to the Old Testament Sabbath and feast days.*

Matthew 5:17: Jesus fulfilled every jot and tittle of the Law.

Matthew 11:13: The Law of Moses was only in effect until John the Baptist.*

Mark 7:1-23: Jesus Christ declared the dietary laws, and hence all commands, of the Mosaic Law to be obsolete.*

John 1:17: The Law was given through Moses; grace and truth realized through Christ.

John 13:34: Jesus Christ gave us a new law of love to replace the laws of the Old Testament.*

Acts 10:1-48: Peter was shown a vision nullifying the dietary laws.*

Acts 15:19-21: The Apostolic Decree says nothing about new Christians observing the Mosaic Law.*

Acts 20:7: The early Christians met on the first day of the week, a clear abolishment of the Jewish Sabbath.*

Romans 3:19-22: Through the works of the Law no one will be justified.

Romans 3:27-31: Justified by faith apart from works of the Law.

Romans 4:5: God justifies those who do not work.

Romans 6:14-15: We are not under law, but under grace.

Romans 6:23: Eternal life is a free gift.

Romans 7:1-25: We were made to die to the Law through the body of Christ.

Romans 8:1-4: The law of the Spirit of life has set us free from the law of sin and death.

Romans 10:4: Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes.

Romans 11:6: Grace is no longer on the basis of works.

Romans 14: God does not care about what days people celebrate or what food they eat.*

1 Corinthians 6:12-20: All things are now lawful.*

1 Corinthians 8: Paul permitted Gentile Christians to eat idol food, a clear violation of the Mosaic Law.*

1 Corinthians 9:19-23: It is only necessary to keep the Old Testament law to convert Jews to Christ.*

1 Corinthians 10:14-33: Paul says to eat whatever is set before you.*

1 Corinthians 16:2: The early Christians met on the first day of the week, a clear abolishment of the Jewish Sabbath.*

2 Corinthians 3: The veil of the old covenant has been removed.*

Galatians 2:11-21: By the works of the Law shall no flesh be justified.

Galatians 3:12-14: Christ redeemed us from the curse of the Law.

Galatians 3:23-25: The Law is our tutor to lead us to Christ.

Galatians 4:8-11: The Sabbath and Old Testament feast days are weak and worthless principles.*

Galatians 5:1-4: Those who try to keep the Law of Moses have fallen from grace.*

Ephesians 2:8-10: We are saved by grace, not as a result of works.

Ephesians 2:14-15: The Law was abolished in the flesh of Christ.

Philippians 3:2-11 Righteousness is not derived by the Law.

Colossians 2:14: The Law of Moses was nailed to the cross of Christ.

Colossians 2:16-23: Christians are not to be judged for not keeping the Sabbath and Old Testament feast days.*

1 Timothy 1:8-9: The Law is not made for a righteous man.*

1 Timothy 4:1-5: Those who observe the dietary laws have committed apostasy against Jesus.*

2 Timothy 1:9: Salvation is not according to works.

2 Timothy 2:15: The Word of God is to be rightly divided between the Old and New Testaments, Israel and the Church.*

Titus 1:14: The Old Testament law is to be regarded as nothing more than Jewish myth.*

Titus 3:5-8: He did not save us according to our deeds, but according to His mercy.

Titus 3:9: We are not to be concerned about obedience to Jewish laws.*

Hebrews 4:1-10: Jesus is our Sabbath rest now.*

Hebrews 7:11-12, 18-19: A change of law has taken place, because it was weak and worthless.

Hebrews 8: The New Covenant makes the Old Covenant obsolete.

Hebrews 10:1: The Law was only a shadow of good things to come.

Hebrews 10:9: God takes away the first covenant to establish the second.

Revelation 1:10: The Sabbath has now been replaced with the Lord's Day.*

Some people try to argue, "If we are no longer under the Law, what's left to keep us in line? That means we can now sin all we want." On the contrary, "For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all men, instructing us to deny ungodliness and worldly desires and to live sensibly, righteously, and godly in the present age" (Titus 2:11-12).

Grace is actually a higher law than the Old Testament Law. Grace changes our hearts so that we want to do God's will. It is called the law of liberty (James 1:25; 2:12), the royal law (James 2:8), the law of the Spirit of life (Romans 8:1-4), the law of Christ (Galatians 6:2), the law of faith (Romans 3:27), and the law within (Hebrews

8:10). We are now under the law of the Spirit who lives within every Believer and not under the letter of the Law: "For the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life" (2 Corinthians 3:6).

-2-

ANSWERING: WHAT IS THE LAW?

Pastor: The Law is a unit of 613 commandments given by God to the people of Israel. The word Law is sometimes used when referring to all Old Testament writings such as in John 10:34 and 15:25 when Jesus quotes Psalms and 1 Corinthians 14:21 when Paul quotes Isaiah. But it is important to remember that there is only one Law. When referring to the moral, ceremonial, and civil laws, we are speaking of three aspects of the Law, not three laws. Those who say we must keep the Law tell us that Jesus fulfilled the ceremonial and civil laws, but not the moral law.

“The Law is a unit of 613 commandments given by God to the people of Israel.”

When the Torah was codified, it was given to the people of Ancient Israel, a wide community composed of those both native born and sojourner. But torah as God’s Teaching or Instruction, contrary to what many contemporary Christians might know, certainly pre-dated Mount Sinai. Genesis 26:5 affirms how the Patriarch Abraham “obeyed Me and kept My charge, My commandments, My statutes and My laws” (NASU). The Hebrew translated “laws” in most Bibles is torotai or “My Torahs” (ATS), also “teachings” (NJPS) or “instructions” (TNIV). Abraham surely obeyed God, and knew a wide degree of what He considered acceptable and unacceptable, prior to the formal giving of the Torah to the Ancient Israelites.

In Genesis 26:5 affirming that Abraham obeyed God’s “laws,” what these various “Torahs” would have likely included, would have been a series of instructions primarily relating to ethics, morality, various sorts of animal sacrifice, and other practices which would mark him out as serving the One True God and not the gods of Mesopotamia or Canaan.<sup>1</sup> The usage of the plural torot could imply that as Abraham grew in his relationship with the Creator and fellowshiped with Him, that he was taught more laws by Him as time progressed, such as the rite of circumcision and the significance it would have for his descendants.<sup>2</sup> Originally having to answer the call of the Unseen God to leave Ur (Genesis 12:1; 15:7), Abraham was surely not told everything he was to do all at once.

A common Jewish interpretation of Genesis 26:5, as the Soncino Chumash notes, holds that “Abraham fulfilled all the laws of the Torah before they were revealed at Sinai, arriving at a knowledge of them through inspiration.”<sup>3</sup> Sirach 44:19-20a in the Apocrypha reflects this opinion: “Abraham was the great father of a multitude of nations, and no one has been found like him in glory; he kept the law of the Most High, and was taken into covenant with him” (RSV). In some cases, Jewish interpreters have taken the plural torot or “laws” to be both the Written Torah and Oral Torah,<sup>4</sup> the latter of which is thought to widely compose literature like the Mishnah and Talmud. While it is very possible that among the various “laws” Abraham followed could include those various oral explanations which would aid Ancient Israel with the keeping of the commandments codified at Mount Sinai, the main point to be taken from Genesis 26:5 is how Abraham’s faith in the Unseen God was in no way incompatible with him being obedient to whatever instructions such a

---

<sup>1</sup> J.H. Hertz, ed., Pentateuch & Haftorahs (London: Soncino, 1960), 95.

<sup>2</sup> Genesis 17:10-27.

<sup>3</sup> A. Cohen, ed., The Soncino Chumash (Brooklyn: Soncino Press, 1983), 145.

<sup>4</sup> Nosson Scherman, ed., ArtScroll Chumash, Stone Edition (Brooklyn: Mesorah Publications, Ltd., 2000), 129.

God gave him. Abraham could not remember the Passover, which is clearly rooted in the Exodus experience of the future nation of Ancient Israel from Egypt. But among those things which could have been clearly given to him, Abraham was faithfully obedient. In his Genesis commentary, John Calvin correctly detected the main focus of what Abraham following God's "laws" meant:

"[A]lthough laws, statutes, rites, precepts, and ceremonies, had not yet been written, Moses used these terms, that he might the more clearly show how sedulously Abraham regulated his life according to the will of God alone—how carefully he abstained from all of the impurities of the heathen—and how exactly he pursued the straight course of holiness, without turning aside to the right or to the left."<sup>5</sup>

Of course, many readers of Genesis 26:5 do not know what to do with the assertion that Abraham followed God's "laws" or "Torahs." The critical tradition, which views the Pentateuch as being a compilation of different sources after the Babylonian exile, might view this only as a statement of the so-called J source or Yahwist,<sup>6</sup> which has been read into the account and is largely fictional. While it is easy to disregard such a liberal opinion, even conservative Protestant readers issue objections to the mere thought that Abraham observed any of what would later be codified as the "Mosaic Law." Objections are often made on the basis that Abraham married his half-sister, which is clearly prohibited.<sup>7</sup> Later, Jacob married two sisters,<sup>8</sup> and also erected a pillar to God.<sup>9</sup> Worst of all, Abraham took his wife's handmaiden Hagar to conceive a child,<sup>10</sup> a definite practice of Ancient Near Eastern paganism which has never been viewed with the greatest of compliments in the Scriptures.<sup>11</sup>

The answer to much of this can elude some people, but these oversights—aside from the obvious fact that these people were limited mortals and were by no means perfect—is that there was a period when the Patriarch Abraham was an idolater, and such influences are not always easily removed. Joshua 24:2 records,

"Joshua said to all the people, 'Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, "From ancient times your fathers lived beyond the River, namely, Terah, the father of Abraham and the father of Nahor, and they served other gods [elohim acheirim]"'" (Joshua 24:2, NASU).

It is true that the Torah would not be formally codified or written until Mount Sinai. But, it is to definitely be noted that a large part of the Torah being given to Ancient Israel in such a written form was to help establish the Levitical priesthood (Galatians 3:19), and with it regulate atonement for sins via animal sacrifice in the Tabernacle or Temple until the arrival of the Messiah (Hebrews 10:1, 3). The plural torotai was undoubtedly used in Genesis 26:5 to describe the obedience of Abraham, because he had to learn all of the instructions—mitzvotai chuqotai v'torotai, "My commandments, My statutes and My laws" (NASU)—directly from God, albeit somewhat loosely in some cases.

J.H. Hertz, in his Pentateuch & Haftorahs, suggests that the commandments (mitzvot) Abraham received were "Laws dictated by the moral sense, e.g. against the crimes of robbery, bloodshed, etc.," that the statutes (chuqim) were "Laws ordained by God which we are to observe although reason cannot assign an explanation, e.g. the prohibition of swine's flesh," and laws (torot) were "Customs

---

<sup>5</sup> John Calvin: Genesis, trans. and ed. John King (Carlisle, PA: Banner of Truth Trust, 1975), 2:60.

<sup>6</sup> Gerhard Von Rad, Genesis: A Commentary, revised edition (Philadelphia: Westminster Press, 1972), pp 270-271.

<sup>7</sup> Genesis 20:12; prohibition: Leviticus 18:9, 11.

<sup>8</sup> Genesis 29:15-35; prohibition: Leviticus 18:18.

<sup>9</sup> Genesis 28:22; 31:13; prohibition: Leviticus 26:1; Deuteronomy 16:22.

<sup>10</sup> Genesis 16.

<sup>11</sup> Cf. Galatians 4:25.

and traditional ordinances orally transmitted from generation to generation.”<sup>12</sup> Passing any of this down orally to the succeeding generations would have been highly difficult, because of how various pagan, Ancient Near Eastern practices are seen interspersed within the early narratives of Genesis, and would have required an authority like Moses to finally and formally deliver via the transcription of the Pentateuch or Chumash.<sup>13</sup>

Generally speaking, all mature evangelical Protestants agree that Abraham is an example which born again Believers are to follow (cf. Romans 4:16). But any argument that Abraham lived his life and conducted himself entirely on blind faith, with no instructions or commandments of any kind to follow, is most unsupportable.

Still, many of today’s Believers disregard the importance of the Torah as including important instructions to be obeyed, because the Law was given to Israel and not the Church. This is resultant from the unfortunate fact that many Christians at large do not often see themselves as being grafted-in to the olive tree of Israel (Romans 11:17-18), or even being related to Israel—as Israel was to be the holy and set-apart people to whom the Torah was given (Deuteronomy 28:9). For dispensationalists especially—who hold to a view that God has two groups of elect, believed to be Israel or the ethnic Jewish people and the Church—Christian Believers who make up the second group of elect are those to whom the Torah does not apply. This is often used as a basis for their rejection of it, along with various proof texts which are offered to support a termination of its authority. Because the Law was not “given to the Church,” it can then be relegated to past history, not really to be used for the spiritual guidance of the Messiah’s followers today.

The analysis of The New Testament Validates Torah is not intended to address ecclesiology or the study of God’s elect in any large detail. But the idea that God has two groups of elect (Israel and “the Church”), as opposed to one composite group of elect (Israel), is a concept which much of today’s Messianic movement rejects. Many in today’s Messianic community believe that the Lord has only one group of elect: the Commonwealth of Israel. The Apostle Paul asserted something very profound in the general epistle written to the non-Jewish Believers of Asia Minor. He told them that although they may be criticized for somehow being “uncircumcised” (cf. Ephesians 2:11),<sup>14</sup> they were to instead “remember that you were at that time [prior to salvation] separate from Messiah, excluded from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world” (Ephesians 2:12, NASU). Paul said that these non-Jewish Believers prior their salvation were “alienated” (RSV) from “citizenship in Israel” (NIV), but because of their faith in the Messiah, that they were now a part of the Commonwealth of Israel. Ephesians 3:6 lays out more fully how redeemed Believers from the nations “are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body, and fellow partakers of the promise in Messiah Yeshua through the gospel” (NASU). This hardly sounds like non-Jewish Believers being a part of a separate “Church” entity.

In Ephesians 2:12, the specific Greek term politeia—“commonwealth” (NASU), “community” (NEB), or “citizenship” (NIV)—is to be properly viewed as “the right to be a member of a sociopolitical entity, citizenship” (BDAG).<sup>15</sup> This is an extremely powerful term, because, if indeed non-Jewish Believers are a part of Israel along with their fellow Jewish brothers and sisters in the Lord, tēs politeias tou Israēl, then as fellow citizens with them they are called to heed the Torah as relevant instruction for their lives—similar to how any Jewish person naturally would. The sojourner who entered into Ancient Israel was called to learn from and follow Moses’ Teaching, as

---

<sup>12</sup> Hertz, Pentateuch & Haftorahs, 95.

<sup>13</sup> At least in terms of the narrative materials from Genesis 1:1-37:2, a conservative scholar like R.K. Harrison, Introduction to the Old Testament (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1969), pp 548-551 holds that this material could have originally survived on eleven clay tablets which could have later been used by Moses in the composition of the Pentateuch.

<sup>14</sup> Keep in mind that for Second Temple Judaism, “circumcision” pertained much more to one’s status as an ethnic Jew or proselyte to Judaism, than to an actual medical operation.

<sup>15</sup> Frederick William Danker, ed., et. al., A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament and Other Early Christian Literature, third edition (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2000), 845.

Deuteronomy 31:12 was direct to emphasize, “Assemble the people, the men and the women and children and the alien who is in your town, so that they may hear and learn and fear the LORD your God, and be careful to observe all the words of this law [kol-divrei ha’Torah ha’zot]” (NASU).<sup>16</sup>

There is really no such thing in Scripture as a separate entity of elect known as “the Church,” which exists outside of Israel. When the Greek word ekklēsia, commonly translated as “church,” was used in the Apostolic Scriptures, the writers used it as a reference to the people who the Lord first called out of the world at Mount Sinai.

In the Apostolic Scriptures no reader can deny how ekklēsia is used as a term to define the Body of Messiah, and so by extension it is rendered as “church” in most English translations of the New Testament. But whether this is an appropriate rendering or not is something critical to ask, because when many people encounter the word “church” they think not of a living and breathing group of Messiah followers, but instead of a building with a steeple.<sup>17</sup> TDNT offers some rather important remarks on the term ekklēsia:

“Since the NT uses a single term, translations should also try to do so, but this raises the question whether ‘church’ or ‘congregation’ is always suitable, especially in view of the OT use for Israel and the underlying Hebrew and Aramaic... ‘Assembly,’ then, is perhaps the best single term, particularly as it has both a congregate and an abstract sense, i.e., for the assembling as well as the assembly” (TDNT).<sup>18</sup>

This Christian commentary says that “assembly” would be the best, consistent translation for the word ekklēsia. The Septuagint, or ancient Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible dating around three centuries before Yeshua, frequently translated the Hebrew word qahal, or assembly/congregation, as ekklēsia. Qahal is one of the main Hebrew terms for “assembly” or “congregation” used in the Tanach, which almost exclusively refers to Israel. TWOT indicates how “usually qāhāl is translated as ekklēsia in the LXX.”<sup>19</sup> When the martyr Stephen spoke of “the church in the wilderness” (Acts 7:38, KJV), tē ekklēsia en tē erēmō, “the church” he was speaking of here, was actually the assembly/congregation of Israel.

The Hebrew word qahal is used in the Tanach to describe the people of Israel. TWOT indicates how “qāhāl may...designate the congregation as an organized body. There is q’hal yisrā’el (Deut 31:30), q’hal YHWH (Num 16:3, etc.), and q’hal ʾēlōhīm (Neh 13:1) and then at other times merely ‘the assembly’ (haqqāhāl). We encounter... ‘the assembly of the people of God’ (Jud 20:2). Of special interest is the phrase ‘congregation of the Lord’ (q’hal YHWH) of which there are thirteen instances (Num 16:3; 20:4; Deut 23:2-4; Mic 2:5; 1 Chr 28:8). It is the nearest OT equivalent of ‘church of the Lord’” (TWOT).<sup>20</sup>

When the Apostolic writers used the Greek word, often rendered as “church” in our English Bibles, they did not see the ekklēsia as a separate assembly or group of people removed from Israel.

<sup>16</sup> Some of the issues surrounding Torah passages such as Exodus 12:48-49; Leviticus 24:22; Numbers 9:14; 15:15-16, 29-30, have been considered in the author’s article “Approaching One Law Controversies: Sorting Through the Legalism” (appearing in the Messianic Torah Helper).

<sup>17</sup> Note how there are various people one may encounter within Hebrew Roots, who will not use the term “church” because they somehow think it has pagan origins. But those in the Messianic movement do not readily use the term “church” to describe God’s people on theological grounds, and the confusion it frequently can cause. When “the Church” is typically referred to in the author’s writings, it is primarily to refer to a religious institution.

Consult the Messianic Apologetics FAQ, “Church, word of pagan origin.”

<sup>18</sup> K.L. Schmidt, “ekklēsia,” in Geoffrey W. Bromiley, ed., Theological Dictionary of the New Testament, abrid. (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1985), 397.

<sup>19</sup> Jack P. Lewis, “qāhāl,” in R. Laird Harris, Gleason L. Archer, Jr., and Bruce K. Waltke, eds., Theological Wordbook of the Old Testament, 2 vols (Chicago: Moody Press, 1980), 2:790.

<sup>20</sup> Ibid.

They considered the ekklēsia to be Israel, perhaps better viewed as an Israel maximized by the arrival of the Messiah, the Israel of God (Galatians 6:16), the Kingdom brought about by the work of the Messiah. The prophesied restoration of Israel's Kingdom, involves not only a restored Twelve Tribes at its center, but has enlarged borders welcoming in the righteous from the nations at large (Amos 9:11-12; Acts 15:15-18). Jewish and non-Jewish Believers, together, compose what might be best described as an enlarged Kingdom realm of Israel.

It is not surprising by any means that one of the lexical definitions given for the word ekklēsia does in fact include "Israel." Thayer states that "in the Sept. [ekklēsia is] often equiv. to [qahal], the assembly of the Israelites."<sup>21</sup> BDAG further summarizes that not only does ekklēsia correspond to the "OT Israelites assembly, congregation," but asserts how it was used by the early Messianic Believers "in Greek-speaking areas for chiefly two reasons: to affirm continuity with Israel through use of a term found in Gk. translations of the Hebrew Scriptures, and to allay any suspicion, esp. in political circles, that Christians were a disorderly group."<sup>22</sup> This is because in an entirely classical context ekklēsia could have been used to describe a civil assembly, such as that of the Athenians,<sup>23</sup> or even the Roman Senate. It is unfortunate that ekklēsia in most Bibles has been translated as "church," whereas it would be best rendered as either "assembly" or "congregation,"<sup>24</sup> with people able to have an easier time seeing that when Yeshua said that He came to "build" His assembly (Matthew 16:18), it is undoubtedly connected with the Father's promise to "rebuild" Israel (Jeremiah 33:7).

If we conclude that those claiming Yeshua as their Personal Savior are a part of the Commonwealth of Israel, as opposed to "the Church," then indeed we can assert that the Torah or Law of Moses is relevant instruction for Believers today.<sup>25</sup>

"The word Law is sometimes used when referring to all Old Testament writings such as in John 10:34 and 15:25 when Jesus quotes Psalms..."

When the Torah or Law is referred to within the Holy Scriptures, it is most often to designate the Pentateuch or Chumash (terms which both designate a book of five), the Biblical Books of: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. Yet, no one can argue against the fact that in various places where "the Law" is referred to, it can refer to other parts of the Tanach or Old Testament, either the Prophets or the Writings.

In reviewing the Greek Apostolic Scriptures, it is important that Bible readers have a proper approach toward the term nomos, representative of "law."<sup>26</sup> Nomos does not always represent a body of commandments given by God to Israel which make up the Law of Moses, but can also be indicative of spiritual laws (perhaps better described as "spiritual constants"), Greek or Roman secular laws, and extra-Biblical "laws" enacted by Jewish Rabbis which today would widely make up the collection of Jewish religious instruction, principally contained in the Mishnah and Talmud. In its ancient usage in Greek, nomos had a wider array of meanings, not limited to just "the Law of Moses," which are employed in some places within the Apostolic Scriptures. The LS lexicon lists the array of possible applications of nomos: "anything assigned, a usage, custom, law, ordinance."<sup>27</sup>

L.A. Jervis indicates in the Dictionary of New Testament Background how nomos "meant both 'law' and 'custom' and so could refer to the laws of a society and to that society's habits and

---

<sup>21</sup> Joseph H. Thayer, Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament (Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 2003), 196.

<sup>22</sup> BDAG, 303.

<sup>23</sup> H.G. Liddell and R. Scott, An Intermediate Greek-English Lexicon (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1994), 239.

<sup>24</sup> Two Christian translations which render ekklēsia as "assembly" include Young's Literal Translation and the Literal Translation of the Holy Bible by Jay P. Green.

<sup>25</sup> For a further review, consult the author's publication Are Non-Jewish Believers Really a Part of Israel?

<sup>26</sup> Nomos is pronounced properly as nōmōs, with a short ō sound. It is more common, although incorrect, to hear it pronounced with a long ō sound, although the omicron and not the omega is the vowel used.

<sup>27</sup> LS, 535.